Saturday saw us travel to Bayford & Herts.....and we lost! Actually saying that we lost would be a gross misuse of the word lost!!! Battered, smashed or pummelled may be better but I will leave it at lost.

Winning the toss on a hot day on a good looking deck and with a team bulging at the seams with batting we found ourselves 91 for 8 against an attack that was average at best. We found many ways to get ourselves out, only Alex of the top order looking like he wanted to stick around and build an innings but was undone by one that turned and was bowled for 30. Only a 9th wicket partnership of 50 odd between Norm (30) & Flopo (16) saw us to a score of "slight" respectability but was still at least 70 odd light of a challenging total. SCCC 152 all out.

Carl again bowled a fantastic opening spell but only had 1 wicket to show for it and that was about it until a late Madhev wicket got us another point. In between the 2 wickets we were given a true batting masterclass from the B&H opening bat who rattled off 80 odd of the classiest and chanceless runs you will ever see!!! SCCC lose by 8 wickets

We worked our arse's off last season to get into a new division and so far our form has been patchy to say the least but this was.....well, embarrassing!!

Take a look at the league table boys and girls do you see where we are??? No you don't see us?? Try looking near the bottom.....see us now!!!! In the next 2 weeks we have the top 2 sides and it's not going to get any easier. Two things we have to start doing is stop making excuses - none of us are world beaters but if you have given your all on the field that's all we expect - stand up and be counted boys, there is no hiding place. And number 2 is simply enjoy it, we all love playing together but we were so flat in the field just like the bad old days...remember them, I do!!!

That's all folks!!!

RYANAIR

I went to the RyanAir check-in desk at Stanstead before flying to Morocco. I asked the check-in clerk to send one bag to Berlin, one to California, and one to Nairobi.

The clerk said "I'm sorry sir. We can't do that."

I replied: "Nonsense. That is what you did last time I flew with you."

On a hot and sultry afternoon Compton's twos were asked to bat by the Exiles captain. Clearly he had noted our undistinguished start to the season and scented an easy, early victory, but what a misjudgment on his part. An opening partnership of 137 from KW and Cameron against, it must be said, an indifferent bowling and fielding performance from Exiles, put us in a commanding position. Unfortunately both openers fell in the eighties with centuries beckoning and with Cameron top-scoring with a stylish 87. Ed came in when Keith chased a wide outside the off stump to give an easy catch to point and continued the torture with a commanding 24 not out. Cameron was out making a tired shot to mid off for a simple catch – 208 for 2. Rhodesy then came in to finish exiles off with 15 off 6 balls and our innings declared an over early at 220 for 3, to give us 44 overs to bowl Exiles out.

We took the field with great confidence and should have taken a wicket first ball, when a sharp catch to gully was put down off Roman, who was not best pleased, especially when a second catch was put down a few overs later and Dave still looking for his first wicket this season. Peri was asked to open at the other end and bowled a tidy first over taking a wicket, bowled, with his last ball and then another, caught KW, in his third over. Rhodesy continued to work hard at the other end, causing the opposition batsmen a lot of trouble but that wicket eluded him. After a few more overs he finally bowled their number four, had the next batsman caught off a steeper by Alakh and young Gary took the third with a sharp catch at first slip, all in the space of 4 overs. In between Cameron had taken over from Peri and grabbed a wicket, giving away 5 runs in his 6 overs. Amongst all these wickets we had to come off for rain and lost 5 overs, but with Exiles 6 wickets down and barely 70 runs, we were still favourites to win if only we could get out the Exiles number 3, who was not looking in any trouble. Rahul came on half way through the innings and bowled the number 8 in his second over and then induced a loose shot from their number three, only to see the catch go down! Howard then toiled away at the other end taking a wicket with 2 overs to go but although there was more playing and narrowly missing in Cameron's last over and a strong appeal for caught behind of H, it was not to be. This was a great improvement on our form to date and a strong team performance, which augurs well for the coming weeks.
